Report of Add on Course on “Development of Employability Skills among Female Teacher Trainee ” (Period 24.06.204 to 29.06.2024)

Introduction: Promoting women's self-worth, their freedom to make their own decisions, and their right to have an impact on societal change for both themselves and other people is referred to as women's empowerment. The fundamental abilities, character traits, and beliefs that help to succeed in any job are known as employability skills. Some names for these include "communication skills," "enterprise skills," and "workplace skills." Effective communication is one of the employability skills. drive and initiative.

Importance: Because employability skills show how well a person get along with his/her coworkers and clients as well as how effectively you are likely to handle job performance and career achievement, employers respect them highly. The welfare and socioeconomic advancement of families, communities, and nations depend on women's empowerment. Women can realize their greatest potential when they lead secure, contented, and productive lives. bringing their abilities to the workforce and being able to raise children who are happier and healthier.
