Report on Field Survey on 26.11.2024

Introduction: Field surveys made it simpler to get local information that is unavailable from secondary sources. Field surveys are carried out to gather the information required for a comprehensive examination of the issue being studied in line with the preset goals. Additionally, these studies help the researcher comprehend the overall conditions and processes, as well as the setting in which they occur. "Observation," a useful method for gathering information from which inferences can be derived, makes this possible. In order to field survey, the students of Geography method of B.Ed SEM II of session 2023-25 went to JOYCHANDI PAHAR, Bankura for Socio-Economic field survey on 26.11.2024 under the guidance Dr. Kalpataru Mondal with the following objectives:

Objectives of the study

- To visit Joychandi Pahar and its' surroundings for Socio-Economic Field Survey.
- To Visit the local school for educational status of local children
- To meet the local villagers for the survey in details.
- To trek the hill for side view of the locality.

Outcomes:

- Students were engaged with practical as well as theoretical aspects to complete the survey.
- Students gained practical knowledge and sense in hands on experience with mixing up the primary school childrens
- Students were attentive and careful to interact with the villagers including interview schedule to get the survey status in live form.
- All participants trek through the hill and visited temples and local panoramic view from top of the Joychandi Hill.
